Michigan Press Association.

AT RED DEER TO-NIGHT.

A wire was received by the secretary of the Board of Trade yesterday afternoon that the Michigan Press Association, some fifty strong, which was to have arrived in Red Deer last evening, was delayed a day, and would arrive in Red Deer this Wednesday evening on the regular 6.40 train from the north. This will be good news to the citizens as, the rain yesterday made it almost impossible to drive out the association to see the country and they would have been disappointed. It is to be hoped every citizen with a vehicle will meet the train this evening and show the visitors the great attractions of the Red Deer district.

A New Methodist Church.

Preparations are just about complete for going on with the work of building the Methodist church started last year. At a meeting some time ago it was decided that if Rev. Mr. Huestis could get $5,000 subscribed besides the amounts already promised it would be wise to go on with the work. Mr. Huestis secured the guarantee of this amount, and now it is only necessary to wait for a few dollars to develop in connection with a loan before the work will be gone on with to completion. The cost of the church when completed will be about $30,000.

Wedding Bells.

The marriage took place on Wednesday evening last of F. R. Petipher, one of Red Deer's best known lumbermen, to Mrs. J. Ide, the ceremony being performed at the latter's residence, Market street by the Rev. C. W. G. Moore. The wedding was very quiet only the immediate friends being present. The happy couple have been receiving congratulations of a large circle of friends the past week.

The marriage of Albert Edward Berwick to Miss Mildred Emily, eldest daughter of Frank Mott, auctioneer, took place at the home of the bride's parents on Thursday last July 1st, Rev. B. Goodfield performing the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet one none but the immediate members of family being present.

On Monday morning last week at Anquetel & Clark's place, Red Deer, by Rev. Father Voisin, Mr. Harold Patchett, of the Smith & Gaetz plumbing department, was united in marriage to Miss Nora Haak, also of Red Deer. Miss Erickson was bridesmaid, while Mr. Anquetel stood by the groom. The friends gave the young couple a jolly send-off, in which expression of good wishes their many friends will join.

INVITATION TO EXPERIMENTAL FARM.

The following letter was received by the News yesterday and speaks for itself. We hope to see a large number of the farmers of this section take advantage of this opportunity to visit the experimental farm for NORTH ALBERTA.

Lacombe, July 6th, 1909.
Dear Sirs:
We extend to you and to your readers who are interested in Agriculture an invitation to spend the 20th of this month with us at this Station. While much remains to be done to lend to the attractiveness of this new Farm, yet we hope to be in a position to place before you something of interest and practical value. Caterers will supply lunch to those who do not wish to bring baskets, and every effort will be made to make the day pass pleasantly and profitably. Sincerely yours, G. H. Hutton, Supt.

INDEPENDENT LIBERAL PICNIC.

A picnic under the auspices of the Independent Liberals of the Red Deer district will be held at the ranch of Thomas Brown, situated near Hillsdown, on Saturday, 24th of July. All are cordially invited; no party politics allowed. Time also allowed for a basket. Various kinds of entertainment. Take the road east past Mr. Jamieson's. Flags at the gates to guide visitors.

MOURNING ETIQUETTE.

Conventional Time For Wearing the Trappings of Mourning.
A widow may resume her society life after the first month of her widowhood has expired, in so far as paying calls is concerned, and after two months she may attend small informal gatherings and concerts. When three months have expired, she may accept and give invitations to small dinners. This is the modern custom, but elderly women frequently make a compromise between the old and the new, and do not accept or give invitations until six months have expired.

Next in importance is the period of mourning for a father or mother. This extends over twelve months, but a great difference exists in the period during which half mourning is worn. For instance, an unmarried daughter residing at home would wear black during ten months and half mourning for two months. A married daughter, on the other hand, living at a distance from her father's home, would wear black for eight months and half mourning for four months or black for six months and half mourning for the same time. Then, again, young girls still in the schoolroom, of ages from ten to fourteen, are not expected to wear black longer than three months and to go into half mourning at the expiration of that time, commencing with black and white, followed by grays and half mourning. Little children are not put into mourning, but wear white with black trimmings. The seclusion followed on the death of a parent, but slight mourning is resumed after the first fortnight and invitations accepted, as a rule, after six weeks or two months, save to bulls and dances.

Next in order comes the mourning for a brother or sister. This period varies from four to six months. Black mourning for four months and half mourning for two months, or black is worn for three months and half mourning for the same length of time. For relations by marriage, a brother-in-law or sister-in-law, four months is the regulation time. It may be said that the mourning worn by a wife for her husband's brother or sister is usually longer than that worn for her sister's husband.

Formerly the period of mourning for grandparents was nine months, but now it is seldom longer than six months. This is divided into four months of black in the case of the granddaughters being unmarried and two months of half mourning. But if they are married and reside in another town black is usually worn for three months and half mourning for three months.

One word as regards the mourning worn for an uncle or aunt. The period is three months, and black is worn for two months and half mourning for one month. The mourning for a shorter period, six weeks, during which time black is worn and no half mourning. This short period is only followed by married nieces who live far away from their relatives.

For a Summer Veranda.
The girl who wishes to render the veranda of the summer cottage attractive should take time by the forelock and make up an assortment of pillow covers. One of the most serviceable tops is of a new material which closely resembles leather and comes in red, blue and green and leather shades made up in plain and fringed with imitation leather fringe.

Burlap covers are embroidered with flower, foliage and bird designs or with fringe made by fraying the edges of the face and back of the pillow top.

Lingerie pillows are of muslin all over embroidered with floral designs and frilled with embroidery and are dotted and sprayed with. Any of the flowered laces are pretty if finished with wide ruffles, and so are the Scotch glenches striped in two tones of one color. Some of them have a broken tartan plaid border that makes an effective ruffle. Scotch madras in two tone or solid colors furnishes a serviceable and smart looking pillow top, and there are most attractive plain French laces in such shades as wistaria, catwisp, champagne, vanilla brown and old rose.

Every scion is an excellent material for a porch pillow cover and is charming when decorated with Dalmatian embroidery in oriental color combinations with embroidery silk. Green colored scrim is used without a pattern, as is also the work.

For the Deoblinger work, done on colored muslin cloth, the eight-fold German towel yarn is used to develop art nouveau or oriental patterns.

Stricken Messina Again Stricken.

Two Terrific Shocks Worse Than Before.

Messina, July 1.—Messina experienced two terrific earthquakes at about half past seven o'clock this morning, which were accompanied by roaring sounds, and are said to have a stronger and more undulatory movement than the earthquake last December. Although the shocks to day had no such terrible consequences, 25,000 residents of this city were thrown into a state of terror. They ran into the streets panic stricken, and to night nearly the entire population is camped in the open places, fearing to return to the structures, which have served them as homes since the city was destroyed.

The broken walls of the old ruins were thrown to the ground, and Messina was for a few minutes smothered in a cloud of dust. It is believed after search of the new ruins no one was killed.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED.

Several persons were struck by detached stones, but so far as is known no one was fatally injured. The first shock was followed quickly by a second, as the people fled pell mell to the American quarters, which they seemed to feel was their safest place of refuge. The authorities were unable to check the invasion, and as a consequence the American quarters designed for the most needy of the population, were taken possession of by the first comers. The soldiers, however, soon drew around this quarter, a guard was mounted at the bridge leading to it. Many of the panic stricken people were driven off and orders were issued that no one should be permitted to occupy the American quarters pending further instructions.

THE ENTIRE DISTRICT SUFFERED.

All commerce ceased in the city and the places of business along the sea front were closed. As a result there are several thousand workmen idle. Special precaution is being taken to prevent disorder.

Reggio suffered almost as severely as Messina, walls were overthrown, but no casualties have been reported there. According to the latest reports, the earthquake affected practically the same section as the Messina disturbance was felt at Tatrmina, but no damage was done there. Within 24 hours the shocks at Messina numbered twenty-three.

Hillsdown U. F. A.

A well attended meeting was held on Saturday. A lengthy discussion was held concerning the Local Improvement Act, which was left over till the next meeting, the general feeling being that non-residents should be taxed heavier than the resident farmers.

Mr. R. E. Fiske reports 14 pigs, 4 weeks old, for sale; Mr. D. O'Connor, one Berk boar, 4 months old; Mr. N. B. Hughes, timothy hay.

Mr. H. Corrigan wishes to employ an experienced farm hand. The next meeting will be held on Saturday, July 31st, at 8 p. m. in Valley Centre school house.

Nuts as Food.

The increased demand for nuts as food, treated at length in a current magazine by the professor of nutrition in the University of California, brings out some interesting deductions. Nuts, it seems, are no longer regarded as a luxury by the multitude or taken as an occasional indulgence; they have become a staple article of food, having their place among market commodities with a regular demand, which compensates the grower for giving special attention to the crop. Used as a substitute for meat, they are relished by many, and special dishes have been devised which have met with widespread favor. In his article on the subject, this authority, after dealing exhaustively with the nutritive quality of nuts, reaches the conclusion that as articles of food nuts and fruits are highly desirable, and made into butters and similar foods, they offer pleasant variety; and especially when cooked and prepared are relished by many who would not otherwise care for them. Chestnut flour and almond meal are familiar articles of nut food in some parts of Europe, and the demand for peanuts and oils made from nuts has long been maintained among the confectioners.

Our primitive ancestors are supposed to have lived on nuts and fruits almost entirely, and whether or not we are to follow their example to any great extent in this respect, it is of interest to note that a food that is not easily restricted in supply is coming in for more appreciative consideration by the mass of consumers.

No More Bounties.

(Farmers' Son.)

At the 1907 convention of the Manufacturer's Association a memorial was approved and sent to the Dominion Government, as a means of encouraging ship building in Canada, to grant a bonus based on new tonnage built, just as a bounty is granted now on each ton of steel and iron turned out by Canadian blast furnaces. The Canadian Courier advises that a still stronger resolution be adopted at next meeting of the Manufacturer's Association; and signs are not lacking that the course advised will be taken.

At the present time a bounty is being paid by the Dominion Government on every ton of ore turned into pig iron; another bounty is paid when the pig is made into steel; a third when the steel is transformed into rods. All told over $2,300,000 was taken from the Federal treasury in paying these bounties last year, nearly one and a quarter million of this being paid to the Dominion Steel and Iron Company, located in Nova Scotia. These iron and steel bounties will, if no change is made in the present law, cease next year, but if a new bounty is given to encourage ship building very strong pressure will be brought to bear for a continuance of the existing iron bounties as well. Against a renewal of the old and a creation of new bounties such pressure should be brought to bear by farmers that the Government will not dare to take the course which they protected and bounty fed interests will urge.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 7th, 1909.

THE LOCAL WEEKLY.

Bryan's Commoner: At this time when the great dailies are becoming more and more business enterprises rather than exponents of opinion, and especially when a number of them have become the property of predatory interests the country newspaper increases in importance. It can be owned by the man who edits it, and therefore, has behind it a conscience and a character that can be identified. It is close to the people and can give voice to the sentiments of its readers. We have to rely more and more upon the country papers for the educational work that is necessary to a correct understanding of public questions. The country newspaper can obtain its news from the metropolitan daily, but it must do its own digesting and interpreting. There is a lot of difference between the man who writes what he is told to write and the man who writes what he believes, and writes because he believes he has a message to deliver to his readers.

EDUCATION AND THE BIRTH RATE.

Prof. Cattell, in a recent article dealing with education and the birth rate, says "there is a very direct connection between educational progress and the declining birth rate. It is, he says, probably not an exaggeration to say that to the average cost of each girl's education through the high school must be added one unborn child. Physiological failure not psychological choice, is here meant. And hardly less significant is another fact. It has been said that human progress was held back a thousand years by sacerdotal celibacy, which cut off the lineage of the ablest men. With equal plausibility it might be argued that the 400,000 American woman teachers withhold the million children who might give the country the intellectual distinction that it lacks.

FLORENCE KINRADE MARRIED.

Florence Kinrade, the central figure in the Kinrade murder case a short time ago in Hamilton, Ont., was married in New York to Clare Montrose Wright, B.A., of Victoria University, Toronto, on Monday, June 28th. The ceremony, which was very private, only the nearest relatives being present, was held in the Madison avenue Methodist church, and was performed by the Rev. Dr. Wallace McMullen. No case that was ever before the people of the east developed so much sensational features as this case. Each day brought forth something new to arouse interest and speculation in it, and the main incident became one of absorbing interest with all classes. The baffling mystery of it all could not but bring about such a result. But while the murder in itself had a horrible fascination about it, as in all other matters of great human interest, there were woven into its warp and woof innumerable incidents which stood out from the dark background of tragedy. It was as though some great master had constructed a plot out of the most tragic materials he could imagine, and had introduced these to intensify it, and, at the same time, relieve the gloom that covered it all.

And of all these incidents the love story of Florence Kinrade and C. Montrose Wright was the most prominent. It was the second plot which, without artifice, was developed into a romance as fascinating as anything the great masters of fiction ever conceived. Though this was the expected sequel to the other news, will undoubtedly occasion much surprise.

Lord Rosebery, in the speech which has made so great a sensation, frankly admits that there is a total absence in Europe of any of the questions which ordinarily lead to war. Yet he says there never was in the history of the world such a tendency to it, or so overpowering a preparation for it. The simple explanation of the mystery seems to be an artificial agitation, got up partly in political, partly in military, partly in commercial quarters, and calling for special watchfulness on the part of the sane and more peace loving community. When the press of the Empire is called together in London to be worked over the wine cup into Imperialist and Militarist enthusiasm there is unquestionably war in the air; and the peace loving part of the community is called upon for special vigilance.

Goldwin Smith in his comments on current events in the Weekly Sun remarks that the St. John Baptist festival at Montreal must have pretty well convinced Canada that she has a French and papal nationality under her girls not that much was needed to prove this after the Autonomy Act, or indeed after the practical renunciation by the Canadian Government of the service of French battalions against the rebels at Batouche, the attack of the French Members of Parliament at Ottawa on the character of General Middleton, and the timid silence of British Members on that occasion. Still we have rubbed on, and to rub on we may continue, if Imperialism will only be discreet. The insertion of the French Province between the British portions of the Confederacy, however, had a bad effect in marring the solidity of British Canada, weakening its sense of a community of interest, and interfering with the formation of a thoroughly national opinion.

Premier Rutherford Will Donate Cup.

Hon. A. C. Rutherford, Premier of Alberta, and Minister of Education, has expressed his determination to donate a challenge cup for association football the competition will be open to provincial high schools and college institutes in Central Alberta between townships 30 and 31 in the south and 60 and 61 in the north. Regulations are in course of preparation and will be known very soon. The season will be between Sept. 15th and May 1st. Notice of intending competitors must be given before September 10th. When notices of contestants have been received preliminary matches to determine first defenders will be arranged among teams in close proximity with each other. If ex-pupils are allowed to play Red Deer will be able to put up a good game. In any event we have the making of the best team in Alberta in our Juvenile School League and our school boys want to keep their eye skinned for this most important trophy offered by the Premier of Alberta.

Blind Man's Buff.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

They had been talking some minutes over the phone—one of those protracted and intimate conversations in which girls delight and which drive to the point of the man who wishes to get the line in order to tell his wife that he is to take the 3 o'clock train for Chicago.

It was Hildegard who spoke in on her friend's account of Tuesday's game with a little damaged shriek.

"Goodness! I didn't dream it was so late. I have an engagement in five minutes, and I'm not half dressed."

"Who is it—Darrell?" It was not a question for the telephone, but Irene never allowed her discretion to stand in the way of her curiosity.

"Yes." The hesitating answer gave Irene the impression that her friend was blushing. Darrell's adoration of Hildegard was the season's joke. It was, however, a very suitable match. Darrell was preposterously rich and not bad looking.

"Too bad about Jack Carr, isn't it?"

"I don't know what you mean." Hildegard's tone was suddenly icy.

"Why, you don't mean that you have not heard of his accident?"

"Accident? What accident?"

"Bentley Boynton told me about it last evening. I supposed, of course, you knew. You and Jack used to be such friends. Some workmen dropped a bag of lime beside him, and it burst and puffed up into his eyes and blinded him. Poor, dear fellow! But he's so plucky that I dare say he'll make a joke of it."

Hildegard rang off abruptly. Her head went down on her arms. Tremors shook her bowed figure. Hot tears rolled from her hidden eyes.

Jack and Hildegard had been good friends. The worldly wisdom which belonged to their station in life, the tacit acceptance of the theory that every girl owes it to herself to marry money if she can alone had kept them from being another. There had been times when the glowing eyes of the young man suggested an almost irresistible temptation to set at defiance the traditions of his class, and the father of the girl's heart had acknowledged some uncertainty as to her own course under such circumstances.

But if Jack had kept his tongue in leash, even if his eyes had been less tractable, and had gone his way and left the field to Darrell with his million.

And now never again would those dear eyes woo her. Never again would she watch from her window that little figure swinging down the stairs as if it walked on air. She saw him groping his way through unending darkness, with only and memories to keep him company. And then on the desk beside her she saw Darrell's card, which the maid had just laid there.

No one has ever given an explanation of the fact that a woman's tenderness for one man is so likely to result in a cruelty to another. But owing to this peculiarity of feminine psychology Darrell's slow reward for a year's devotion was the busy note the maid brought down five minutes later.

"I cannot see you this afternoon. And please do not come again till you are willing that I should be nothing more than your friend."

"A lady to see me?" Jack Carr, sitting in his darkened room, with a shade over his eyes, betrayed no satisfaction at the prospect of companionship.

"What's her name?"

"She didn't say, sir. She said to tell you that a friend would like to see you for a few moments."

"Oh, show her up. I'm not much to look at just at present, but, anyway the room's too dark for her to see."

His philosophy stood by him till a swish of skirts on the stairs suggested an idea so preposterous that his heart leaped. He put up his hand as if to ward off a blow. Then a voice said, "Jack!"

"Hildegard!" He sprang forward, stumbled over a footstool and regained his balance and his self control at the same moment. "I'm not quite used to this sort of blind man's buff," he said in a rather breathless voice. "You must find a chair, please. Awfully good of you to look me up, I'm sure."

Hildegard was thankful that the room was dark. In the clear daylight her courage would have failed her.

"It wasn't good at all," she quavered in an uncertain voice. "I just had to see you, Jack!" Her voice died away, and she regained it only by an effort. "Jack, tell me—was I mistaken in thinking that you used to care for me?"

The pause that followed seemed unendurably long. "No," Jack said at last in a voice which his own—no, that was no mistake, God knows."

She breathed more freely now that the plunge was taken. Except for the dryness of her throat and her burning cheeks she felt almost at ease.

"But I was mistaken about myself, Jack. I thought I could be satisfied with a great deal of money and a good social position and all that, and what I wanted all the time was you. I have money enough for all of us. I shan't give you a chance to remember your blindness."

She hesitated at the word, but took it gallantly, like a thoroughbred. "I'll be eyes to you and sunlight—oh, Jack, I'll make you happy in spite of everything!"

He crossed the room and stood beside her. "Hildegard!" he cried hoarsely. "You mean that you are ready to refuse Darrell and marry me?"

"Mr. Darrell means that anything!" Hildegard acknowledged with an air of wishing to give every one his due. "But you're—Jack?"

"You—you said something about my eyesight," stammered Jack. "Did you mean—"

Hildegard caught his hand. "Oh, dearest, that was what opened my eyes! When I heard that you were blind I couldn't bear it, and then I knew perfectly well that I couldn't live without you."

He swept her to him, and a blissful moment followed. But the mysterious sixth sense which belongs to you led Hildegard to divine disgust in her lover. She drew away palpitating.

"Jack, are you sure that you haven't got over caring for me?"

He was so reassuring on this point that the scared color came back to her cheeks. "You're not worrying because you're not rich?" she rebuked him quietly. "Why, Jack, we can get along beautifully with what I have, even if I don't come in for a share of Uncle Enock's money!"

"It isn't that altogether, darling. You spoke about my eyes—"

"She shug her arms about his neck. "My eyes are yours from now on, dear. I'll never give you a chance to know that you've lost anything."

"You are an unselfish angel," said Jack with conviction. "But the truth is, dearest, that the matter has been a little exaggerated. It's hardly quite painful, you know, but the doctor thinks that in three weeks I can go back to the office again."

"Oh!" Horror turned Hildegard rigid in his arms. "And I've proposed to you without any excuse."

"Jack did not answer—rather at least—but without the aid of speech and in an incredibly short time Hildegard was convinced that no excuse was needed."

Old Luck at Cards.

There was an extraordinary illustration of beginner's luck given recently by a young man who had been enticed into a poker game by three "experts."

The latter were not professional card sharps, but well acquainted with the game, had no scruples against fleeing an easy mark. Having very diplomatically induced the youth to enter the game and having explained the cardinal principles to him, the play began.

Things went quietly for awhile, but finally the excitement started. One "expert" opened the jack pot with three aces, one of the others came in with a pair, the "easy mark" drew four cards. The man with the three aces started the betting, but the "easy mark" came right back at him. The "expert" having taken note of the four card draw, concluded that the youth was betting on little or nothing and played his three aces far more strongly than he would have done had his opponent been well up in the game.

Finally, when the table was piled high with money, the "easy mark" drew the "easy mark" laid down five spades, not one of them higher than the nine.

"You drew four cards?" exclaimed the "expert" to himself. "Which one did you hold?" "I held the two of spades," replied the youth. "But why under the sun did you hold the two of spades?"

"That was the only spade I had," said the "easy mark" innocently, and that was the only reason he could give. He played the whole evening in just such a way, and when he had finally called the "experts" far behind the game—Philadelphia Record.

An Affair of Weight.

It is one of the absurdities of Professor Rounder's fads to keep himself within certain limits of avoidance, and at stated intervals, when he does not forget, he calls at the village stores, tries the scales and notes carefully whether he is going over or under the permitted 225 pounds.

On one occasion he was astonished to observe the machine register 233 pounds. "Tut, tut! Dear me, this will never do!" he frowned. Then a happy smile twinkled in his eyes as he reflected: "Of course. Last week I wore no overcoat."

Removing his outer garment, he threw it over one arm and again consulted the figures. Two hundred and thirty-three pounds!

With a look of scholarly perplexity Professor Rounder walked out into the cold street, still carrying the overcoat over his arm and muttering: "Tut, tut! Dear me! Then I am gaining! This is very serious!"—Applegate's.

THE FIRST OF JULY.

Dominion Day Sports a Great Success.

Canada's 42nd birthday opened cloudy and damp and it looked as though the day would be spoiled by rain but towards noon the sun began to peer through the clouds and shortly after the sky cleared and the afternoon was gloriously clear and fresh. Flags were flying in different parts of the town and citizens generally had on their holiday smile.

The first event in the day sport was the MARATHON RACE.

This was over a five mile course from the Canadian Bank of Commerce to Eccles street, east to McKenzie north to Douglas west to Gaetz and back to the centre of the town four times and was well contested. The starters were: Pratt of Lacombe, Robert Gee, Hoar, Willis, Reg. Taylor, J. Neyrinck, Dan Smith and W. Blair. Pratt won all the way, beating the others by a mile and a half. Pratt made a final sprint winning by 15 seconds. Time 31 minutes and a half.

GUN CLUB EVENTS.

At 10 o'clock the gun club, with visitors from Calgary, Olds and Water Glen, started operations on the Club range west of the depot. The first event was

SWEETSTAKES (15 birds)

One dollar entrance and $10 added. Won by Anderson, Fagan, P. Tait, first, 12 birds; Walkley, Lindbloom, Plaxton second with 11 birds; Stephenson and Duff third 10 birds; Dr. Parsons fourth 9 birds.

CHAMPIONSHIP CUP.

Andrews Calgary Stephenson Red Deer, Fagan Water Glen tied with 21 each out of 25 birds. In the shoot off five birds all missed one. In the next five, Andrews lost two, the others one. In the final Fagan won out by losing only one bird while Stephenson lost two.

The scores were: Fagan 21, Andrews 21, Duff 17, Parsons 16, Craighead 14, Walkley 19, Lindbloom 19, E. C. Brower 10, Tait 18, Randall 14, Stephenson 21, Norquay 11, F. C. Brower 17, Huskins 12, Plaxton 19, Drake 10, Bryan 9.

CITIZENS CUP.

In the citizens cup contest fifteen targets, Water Glen team won out with a score of 55. There were four teams competing, namely, Olds, Water Glen and two Red Deer teams, each team with five men. Olds team made 51. Red Deer's first team was close but could not win so Stephenson did not shoot. The second Red Deer team were some distance behind and Ware did not shoot.

SWEETSTAKES No. 2, 15 birds:

Andrews 14, P. Tait 13, Lindbloom 10, Craighead 8, Ware 5, Stephenson 13, Duff 6, Walkley 10, E. C. Brower 9, Randall 10, Plaxton 11, Drake 11, Fagan 12.

Parsons 13, Cottingham 12, Lee 11, Norquay 6, F. C. Brower 12. Miss and out—Stephenson 10, 1st; Tait and Craighead 8 2nd; Drake 7, 3rd; Plaxton 6, 4th.

Consolation 15 birds—Tait and Norquay 7, first; Ware and R. L. Gault 6, 2nd.

At the Exhibition grounds there was a splendid crowd of citizens and people from the country. The estimation that there were over fifteen hundred people present could not be far astray.

It was impossible for the spectators to take in all the events as baseball, football and athletic sports were all going on at the same time.

ATHLETICS.

Pole Vault—R. McIlveen, W. D. Postill, 8 ft.

Running hop, step and jump—W. D. Postill, W. Northey, 86 ft. 8 in.

Running high jump—C. L. Smith, R. McIlveen.

Pat Man's race—J. Forrester, P. Hansen.

Shot Put—R. Emerson, B. Northey, 32 ft. 5 1-2 in.

100 yards race—E. Smith, J. Coghlin, 10 1-4.

220 yards race—E. Smith, J. Coghlin.

Half mile race—E. Smith, L. Domoney.

Boy's race 16 years—D. Vanalyke, Jonas Reinhold.

Boy's race, 16 years—L. Lewis, C. Smith.

Girls' race, 14 years—Gladys Alfred, Margaret Walton.

Broad jump—W. Northey, L. Domoney, 8 ft. 5 1-2 in.

Bicycle race, one mile—Clarence Markle, Arthur Caswell.

Fug of War—Dr. Rowntree's team with J. Forrester, anchor, pulled against the Red Deer Brick company's team, P. Hansen anchor. The Dr's team won out in two straight pulls. There is some pretty good stuff in this team and we believe they can pull anything in the province with some practice.

The relay race was very exciting and well contested. Four men a side ran an eighth of a mile each and passed the handkerchief to the next number the race being the half mile track.

E. Smith's team won out. They were P. Kent, E. Domoney, V. Halliburton and E. Smith. The other team was W. Blair, A. Caswell, J. Coghlin and W. Krause.

Will Krause had the lead by some distance at the last stage but E. Smith who is a 10 second sprinter came in ahead by a few feet.

HORSE RACES.

The horse races developed some good going as the times show, though the finishes were not close. The summaries were:

Harness race, open. Half mile. Best two in three:

"Zombro," J. W. Tilden 1 1

"Red Deer," Geo. Harvey 2 2
"Joe Jefferson," E. Kirk 3 2
Time—1:18, 1:17 1-2.
Pony race 142 or under. Half mile dash. Best two in three:

E. Bryan 1 1
H. J. Snell 2 2
G. Bryan 3 3
Time—58, 61.

Gentlemen's drivers. Half mile. Best two in three. Owners up:

Jas. McKeechney 2 2
Geo. Harvey 2 2
E. Kirk 3 4
H. A. Crocker 4 3

Time—1:25, 1:23.
Running race, open. Half mile dash:

Bethune 1
H. J. Snell 2
Time—50 sec.

Slow race, to buggy. Half mile. Change drivers at post:

Alberta Hotel, A. H. McPherson. The judges held that the Capt. did not exert himself as he should to drive the stallion, and consequently the prize went to the old reliable.

In the bucking contest W. McLennan was awarded first prize. W. Blair second. The horses did not develop much bucking propensities, but they gave the crowd a run for their money.

THE CADETS.

The Red Deer Cadet Corps, under command of Dr. George, gave an exhibition of marching and firing exercises during the afternoon, to the evident pleasure of a large crowd. The boys have developed into quite an efficient organization. The Red Deer Citizens' Band, who also added to the pleasure of the day, played a large crowd.

Corp. Cruickshank was awarded the medal for the best dressed cadet, and Pte. Huskins the medal for best dressed cadet, Sergt. Oliver doing the judging.

THE BASEBALL GAME.

Red Deer's old opponent, Wetaskiwin, journeyed down with the intention of putting it all over our local ball tossers, but travelled back sadder and wiser men, for though the score was a tie, there was little doubt as to which had the stronger team.

The fireworks started in the first inning when Martin got a pass to first. Edgington singled and Hamley singled, scoring Martin. Losses sacrificed, Lefranco singled, Rasmus bunted out and was thrown out at first by Felon. Northey and Mann contributed two more Texas leaguers and Brown struck out, retiring the side for four scores.

In the first innings Wetaskiwin was retired one, two, three, but in the second innings Red Deer showed their lack of practice by allowing Wetaskiwin to score 5 runs, only two of them earned. The score remained 5-4 until the first of the fifth, when Losses started out with a safety.

LaFrance got a life on Murray error. Rasmus flew out to Barrett, who doubled LaFrance at first and Northey was there with the little bingle that brought the run home. The rest of the game was shutout but, both having no bases on several occasions but

THE FOOTBALL GAME.

The final for the Michener Cup was played between the Firemen and Town teams, and was won by two goals to one. It was anybody's game up to the last minute. The Firemen had the best of it all through, but the Town by quick, keen play managed to take advantage of an unguarded moment to score, while the Firemen were unable to break their opponents' defence. Don. Robertson, who was lame, and unable to play his usual fast game, weakened the Firemen's forward line some, but Oliver's absence was also a great loss to the back of the Town team. A penalty kick on goal the last moment by the Firemen was nicely stopped by the Town goalkeeper, thus saving the day. The teams were:

Town—Caswell, goal; Scott, Patchett, backs; Castle, Gee, Clark, half backs; Graham, Hedley, Stedman, Moore, Willis, forwards.

Brigade—Davis, goal; Logan, Hoare, backs; Robertson, Roberts, Rooney, half backs; Coghlin, Bawfiv, Krause, Major, Kent, forwards.

Ermo Krause refereed the game.

Among those at Edmonton fair were Miss Sadie Paterson, Fred Krause, John Greening and wife, J. J. Richards, T. B. Miller, H. W. Wright of the Imperial Bank, C. A. J. Sharman and wife.

unable to score. A feature of the game was Edgington's batting. He made four hits out of four times at bat, one of them being a two-bagger. Felon pitched the first inning for Wetaskiwin and then gave place to Hall, who, while he was hit freely, played a steady game.

The detailed score was as follows:

Losses pitched a winning game all through and showed marked improvement over last year. It is to be hoped the boys will get busy and practice harder in the future.

LACROSSE.

Edmonton's crack team played the Red Deer team and won easily. The visitors were a gentlemanly lot of young fellows and clean, sharp stick handlers. The locals were obliged to get several players from Lacombe, as the players were otherwise engaged. Edmonton scored in less than five minutes and had four goals to their credit in less than ten minutes. The home team woke up and put up a better game. At the close the score stood seven to three in favor of Edmonton. Red Deer players were not doing too well in the game, and not checking out to-morrow.

Innisfail Province:—At the police court on Wednesday Rev. Father Tierney, of the Roman Catholic Church was fined $2 and costs, for assault on a boy named Oliver St. Denys. It happened that the boy was one of the altar boys of the church and that for some time he had been absenting himself from the services. On Saturday Father Tierney met the boy and expostulated with him and was met with insolent remarks. The boy then ran away from the Father in chase. Oliver fell down and was picked up by the priest and marched to the police station, being handled rather roughly, he alleged on the way. His mother laid a charge of assault against the reverend gentleman, with the above result.

Seven prominent women educators have drawn up a set of rules for the young women of Japan governing their relations with the male sex. The rules are all prohibitory and run as follows: Don't have a talk with young men in a closed room; the presence of a third party is required.

MUSIC SCRAP BOOKS.

A New Venture for the Feminine Collector's Talent.

The scrap book—the heterogeneous collection of fugitive verse, anecdote, humor or general information in which for some reason we are interested—is always suffering from the lack of material. It is at all intelligently put together, bound to be of value later on. Let any one who doubts starts a scrap book instantly.

But of all scrap books the one likely to prove most profitable for the young girl, particularly one who sings and plays the music scrap book. It is a treasure of the vocal and instrumental values that constantly appear in magazines and journals.

These fugitive productions which interest the young girl include the ballad which just suits her young, fresh voice; the simple pictures or the fetching tropes; which even her not over-learned fingers can render effectively.

The main difficulty—procuring a proper sized and shaped book—is obviated by cutting heavy packing paper into the right dimensions and tacking firmly together in the back. Two or even three such volumes are better than one very thick one for convenient handling on the piano rack. A simple decoration on the cover, a title, still better, a decorated pasteboard cover gives the desired artistic touch.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 11, 1909.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts xvi, 16-40.
Memory Verses, 29-31—Golden Text,
Acts xvi, 31.—Commentary—Response.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]
The scene of this lesson is Philippi. The special places in the city are the prayer meeting, the prison and the home of Lydia. The principal incidents are the casting out of the evil spirit, the cruel treatment and imprisonment of Paul and Silas and the conversion of the jailer and his household. And the great workers are, as always, God and the devil. Thus the story is in greater or less measure duplicated every day until finally the devil and all his followers shall be and the kingdom shall be the Lord's," "Yea, all kings shall fall down before Him," all nations shall serve Him (Isa. 45: 11). "I will be a Father to the fatherless," and may defend ourselves we must at any cost stand wholly apart from all that is of the devil, for all that is is either of God or the devil, no matter how it may look to our eyes. As the servants of God proceeded to the place of prayer a young woman came forward, and said to the leaders of the servants of the Most High God, who shew unto us the way of salvation," and this she did many days. Now, this was the truth that she uttered, as were also the words of the evil spirit in Mark 1, 24, "Thou art the holy one of God," "Thou art the Son of the Most High," and "Paul would have none of this, rebuking it to be said."

of the devil, so in the name of Jesus he commanded the evil spirit to come out of her. Good words and good works, as men judge, do not necessarily indicate the spirit of God as the one who is speaking and working.¹ No one ever said more beautiful and wonderful words than Balaam, and yet he is associated in Jude 11 with Cain and Core, and we are taught to beware of such as he.² Those who do not honor Jesus as God are not of God and therefore must be of the evil one, and yet many such are honored today as if they were truly sent of God, and to thick against them would cause possibly as great a tumult as did the casting out of this demon at Philippi. Some say we must be broad minded and acknowledge the good in all religions, but as the truth is in Jesus and not in other so called leaders we must be as narrow as Paul and as Jesus Himself, who told the religious leaders of His day that they were of the devil.

When people's gains are touched they are apt to become suddenly indignant against unrighteousness as viewed from their standpoint, as the men in our lesson did and later those at Ephesus (climber xix, 23-29). Paul and Silas were therefore arrested, many stripes laid upon them, and they were cast into the inner prison and their feet made fast in the stocks. Where now was the "all power" of Him who sent them forth, the "power over all the power of the enemy?" (Matt. xxviii, 18; Luke x, 19). As we ask the same concerning Joseph and permitted to suffer for His sake. Paul knew that he was called to suffer for Christ's sake, and he assures us that it is our privilege also (Acts ix, 10; Phil. i, 29). To glorify God is everything, and, if we can do that best by suffering, then suffering is the way. With aching bodies and feeling that they had been shamefully treated (I by His grace were able to sing praises to Him so loudly that all the prisoners heard them. Like Jehoshaphat's singers, they praised the Lord before they saw deliverance (II Chron. xx, 21, 22). It is well to "bless the Lord at all times and have His praise continually in our mouth" (Ps. xxiv, 1). Not only were they heard throughout the prison, but in heaven also, and suddenly the prison was shaken by an earthquake, all doors opened and every one's hands loosed. Some one has said that, although they had not influence enough on earth to keep them out of jail or to get them out, they had power enough from heaven to shake the prison to its very foundations. The jailer also was shaken to his very soul and would have killed safe, he is convicted of sin and, falling down before Paul and Silas, asked what he must do to be saved. Gathering his household together, they had the way of salvation set before them by these messengers of the Lord, and that night he and all his confessed Christ by baptism.

We may judge from Paul's preach-he would tell them of the condition of all men by nature, of the grace of God in giving His Son to die for sinners, the just for the unjust; of His being made a curse for us, of His resurrection, ascension and coming again. Doubtless Paul would say, "It was to Him we prayed down here in the dungeons, His praises we sung, and in heaven He heard us and did this wouldst think that, except you were killing yourself that you might be saved; and after witnessing and suffering here for awhile share with Him His kingdom and glory." To believe is to receive (John 1, 12), and therefore then this household received Jesus as their Saviour. What joy in heaven as well as on earth, according to Luke xv, 7, 10. It was worth while to sufand imprisoned, to bring this to pass.

The Dorowa Tree.

While the seeds of the dorowa, an East African leguminous tree, are extensively used for food, the pods and leaves form an excellent cement when mixed with crushed stone.

Nosoblead.

To stop bleeding at the nose cut some blotting paper about an inch square, roll it about the size of a lead pencil and put it up the nostril that is bleeding. The hollow in it will allow the sufferer to breathe. The blood will fill the space between the tube and the nose and will very soon coagulate and cease to flow.

All The Difference

Among the patients in a private ward of a Philadelphia hospital there was recently a testy old millionaire of that city, whose case gave his physician considerable difficulty at first.

"Well," asked the crusty patient one morning "how do you find me now, eh?"

"You're getting on fine," responded the doctor, rubbing his hands with an air of satisfaction. "Your legs are still swollen, but that doesn't trouble me."

"Of course it doesn't!" howled the old man. "And let me tell you this. If your legs were swollen, it wouldn't trouble me either!"—Lippincott's.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

Saturday night, and the week's work done, and the Old Man with a bunch of men! You see him sit on the cottage porch, and he puffs away at a five-cent torch, while the good wife sings in her evening choral, and the children gambol around outdoors. The Old Man sits on his work-day hat, and he doesn't envy the plutocrat; his debts are paid and he owns his place, and he'll look a king in the blooming face; his hands are hard with the brick and loam, but his heart is soft with the love of home! Saturday night, and it's time for bed! And the kids come in with a buoyant tread; and they hush their noise at the mother's look, as she slowly opens a heavy book, and reads the tale of the stormy sea, and the voice that quieted Galilee. Then away to bed and the calm repose that only honesty ever knows. Saturday night, and the world is still, and it's only the erring who still things ill; there is sweet content and a sweet night's rest, where a good heart beats in a brave man's breast.

Eckville.

The Pionier held by the Finlanders of this district on the 24th passed off very well notwithstanding a somewhat showery day. Running, jumping, horse racing, etc., were the order of the day. The most important feature was a boxing contest. L. Johnson rode the first horse, which however did not put up much of a fight. L. McArthur who rode the outlaw of the bunch, gave a better show and proved himself a master of the art. A very enjoyable day terminated with a dance.

Mr. Bernard is up from the East on a visit to his sons. He says he would give quite a bit for some of our black soil, if he had it back home. He can't very well shift the soil, but he can move himself and bring his friends. There's lots of room here yet for the right men.

Still the milk flows into our Cheese Factory. It's time to discard bad milkers, they will probably make beef, and get into better dairy stock. Bad cows are not worth feeding, good ones are worth a little extra.

Mr. Edwards preached here last Sunday and will be with us again on the 4th of July. Service in School house 11 o'clock.

Puffer Works Both Ways.

(Lacombe Advertiser.)

It hasn't been such a very long time since Lacombe voters were swearing by our M. P. P. because he had promised to use all his powerful influence to see that the railroad passed right through that burg. Now Stettler has sent the same M. P. P. as a delegate to the railway magnates for the purpose of using that same influence to bring the road through Stettler. Verily the Alberta voter is dead easy. He even sits on the fence and prays the passerby to catch him for a sucker.

The Fugitive Witness.

By WILLIAM H. HANBY.

Copyrighted, 1920, by Associated.

It was an entirely new situation to Charley Mason. He had read of such things in stories, but he never had believed that real people encountered anything like it in real life—much less that he would.

It was without need to him in two respects without being uncommon in real life. In the first place, he never had been within twenty hours of his own wedding before; in the second place, no other man ever had been engaged to a girl half so sweet and charming and altogether lovely as Macy Perry and then, the very place, came the uncommon and almost unbelievable situation—what other important case against the C. Q. and L. railroad. Mason was agent for the road at Belltown and was wanted as an important witness.

He had been subpoenaed for the next day, Thursday, but to avoid unnecessary risk he had planned to take the 5 o'clock train for Layton, where his bride to be lived. The relief agent had been checked in, the boys and girls with him, the train dispatcher clicked him "Good luck, Charley," and he had turned away to go to his room to dress when the sheriff stepped up and took him by the arm. "Why—why—really," he began, when he saw it was not a joke, "I just can't go. You'll have to excuse me. You see—I'm blushed—I am to be married at 8 o'clock in the morning."

The sheriff grinned knowingly. He had heard all sorts of excuses, but this "it won't go," he said. "Nothing will go except your body."

At the captured witness was led away to the officer's buggy, a picture stood vividly before his eyes.

think you want to get married badly enough to break your neck jumping out of that? It was a brick wall dropping sheer thirty feet to the ground. He went out and locked the door behind him.

In a few minutes a deputy sheriff came. "I am to stay with you to night and keep off the nightmarers," he said good naturedly.

Things began to look serious—very serious indeed. It was nearly 7 o'clock, the trains through the county sent no one out of town through Belltown and Layton, and it was forty miles overland to the latter. Twelve hours more and the wedding guests would begin to arrive.

They were to be married at 8 and take a fast train for Colorado for the honeymoon. He had the passes in his pocket. They went down to supper. The deputy stayed close at his side, evidently intending that he should have no temptation to run. Despair thick and black was rapidly settling down upon the desperate bridegroom when a yelling theatrical company came into the dining room. It was the same troupe that had been at Belltown the previous week. Mason caught the eye of the leading man, with whom he had become acquainted, and they nodded cordially.

"As a friend of mine I used to know in the south," said Mason to the deputy. "If you do not object I would like to speak to him after supper."

"Sure," said the other obligingly. When they arose from the table Mason went across and gripped the actor's hand. They had a long, confidential chat which soon became so merry that the deputy sheriff walked to the door and came back to the table.

"He would like to come up to my room and have a little visit after the play," said Mason to the deputy. "I suppose you don't object?"

"Certainly not."

The actor came in at 11:30, and the deputy left him, and the actor and the bridegroom went to the room and then went across the street to a barroom where he could easily watch the theatrical company.

If he had looked through the keyhole instead of looking upward at a non-committal light window thirty feet from the ground he would have saved himself much subsequent trouble.

The actor was laughing and doing something very queer for a man who had merely dropped in for a social visit. He was daubing and smearing Mason up generally with grease paint.

"You could break into any farmhouse in the country—if it wasn't too tight and they didn't feel your pulse."

Mason rang for a porter and had the landlady called.

"Mr. Curry," called he through the door, "they locked me up because they thought I did not want to go against the railroad, but I don't give a hang for the railroad. The reason I tried to get away is that I was exposed to the snuggles two weeks ago, some doggos working on our road, and I was trying to get away to see a specialist when the sheriff nabbed me."

"Since supper," he said, "I am breaking out. I wish you would see."

"The dickens!" exclaimed the landlady, seeing her business killed by a quarantined. "Keep still till I get a key. I've had the smallpox myself and we'll see."

"Well, I should guess!" said the landlady when he unlocked the door a few minutes later. The lamp was turned low, and the actor was under the bed. "You stay where you are till I get a team for you, then you scout!"

He seated. At a quarter before 8 he came in, he drove into Layton. When court convened at 9 o'clock the judge received a telegram.

Married and on my way west for my health. The forgiveness and blessings of Deaver.

Art Versus Veal.

A member of the Art Students' league tells this on himself. In the course of a sketching jaunt in the rural districts last summer he had wandered rather far afield, and finding himself in a picturesque section, arranged to stay a few days at the home of an old couple of unknown but kindly nature. He was engaged one day along the roadside, where a calf was tethered, in making a water color study of the pretty creature, when an automobile containing a party of Pittsburghers drew up, and the occupants passed to him for some information. One of the motorists took a fancy to the sketch and made arrangements to purchase it when completed for $25.

This bit of news aroused in the rural hosts of the artist the most profound astonishment, as he learned after retiring that night on overhearing from the kitchen below the following conversation:

"Land sakes, Hiram, d'you believe them people really give him $25 for that little bit of painting?"

"Waal, some of them Pittsburghers hez more money than brains, ar they're like 't do most anything."

"But, my land, Hiram, $25 for a little bit of paper with a calf drawn on it! If they'd only a-knowledged they'd a had 't critter itself fer half the money!"—Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

Impossible.

In a certain town are two brothers who are engaged in the retail coal business. A noted evangelist visited the town, and the elder brother was converted. For weeks after his conversion he endeavored to persuade his brother to join the church. One day he said to him, "Why can't you, too, join the church, Richard?"

"It's all right for you to be a member of the church," replied Richard, "but I ain't joinin' who's going to weigh the coal?"—Lippincott's.

The July Rod and Gun.

"Big Game Shooting in the Yukon Territory," by that veteran sportsman, Mr. C. G. Cowan opens the exceptionally fine July number of Rod and Gun, Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Ontario. It is clear from the account given that big game is plentiful in the Yukon and provides fine sport for those who can afford the time and money to travel so far. Mr. Reginald Gourlay predicts a good Fall for Hares and a consequent relief to the big game from the North from Indian raids. Canadian and American sportsmen should note and govern themselves accordingly. The Bassett Hound, for Sport in an article which will interest all dog lovers. These are but samples of a long list in which fishing and hunting topics come in for adequate treatment, while numerous short papers supply variety and enable sportsmen to pick up the magazine at any time, confident of finding much that will give them pleasant reading on topics which appeal to them all the year around even if the force is increased somewhat in the summer weather when the wild is calling in many ways.

Edwell Union No. 53. The regular monthly meeting was held on Saturday June 12th in the school house. The attendance was decidedly below the average and the Secretary will have to emulate the Secretary of the Hillsdale Union to secure a good attendance.

Mr. Geo. S. Blake and Mr. Harry Rares were elected members bringing a total of 43 to date.

After the previous minutes were discussed and approved the monthly circular No. 6 was read and it contained several matters of interest it was decided to postpone its consideration to a future meeting.

The meeting expressed its approval of the arrangements made to the twine from the Mackay Harrier Co. and a further communication will be made to members at the next monthly meeting as to time of arrival etc.

A discussion on the subject of Hail Insurance was postponed to the next meeting when it is hoped there will be a good turn out.

The Secretary regrets that members have not attended regularly as these meetings are held for their benefit. It is not encouraging to the officers.

Next regular monthly meeting July 10th 1920 at 7:30 p. m.

THE REGISTERED TROTTING STALLION

"ZOMVERT" 2 29 4

Was sired by the world renowned "Zombar," 2:11, the greatest show horse and sire of extreme speed that ever lived. Besides many other great ones he sired "Halla" 2:04, world's record for given year, "San Francisco" 2:07, world's record for three heaty given year, "Symmetus" 2:08, world's record for three-year-old gelding. Zomvert's claim to greatness rests not alone with his sire, as his last and best son, "Zombar," one of the twelve greatest horses that ever lived. Come to my barn and carefully study his tabulated pedigree, and you will convince him to be a Prince, and son of a King. The Zombars have sold for thousands, where other good horses have brought only hundreds. Farmers, as well as others, look to your interests, and breed a mare or two to a Zombar while you can. For the present season he will stand for service at my lively and feed barn on Alexander Street, Red Deer, Alta., at prices within the reach of all.

Look Where You Are Going!

To do so is not always practicable because the person addressed may be looking two ways at once, or apparently doing so. CROSS EYE or STRABISMUS is very disfiguring and uncomfortable, and in addition it results in the loss of at least one of the eyes. In the great majority of cases it is due to a high degree of hypermetropia, or long sightedness, and the case may be corrected by relieving the refractive error with glasses, if taken in time. If not done early childhood, however, it is hopeless without a surgical operation. I will be glad to explain this in detail to you if you will call. This space costs money, for the News man says this is not correspondence. I wonder why.
